DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Muller House is a stone dwelling which is two stories in height and is approximately two bays long by one deep. The house has a gable roof covered with corrugated metal. The original roof was probably wood shingle. There is a brick end chimney in each gable wall. The exterior surface has been covered with stucco and whitewash. Although the original sash has been removed the house probably had 6/6 sash. The facade of the house has a one story frame addition built onto it. The house is a double house with an entrance and exit for each side. There is a small frame addition on the rear of the house. The interior was not visible or available for inspection.

The Muller House is typical of many stone houses built in the early 19th century. Due to its close proximity to Carter's Mill it might have been connected to the mill during earlier years.
